Proof Point Content Submission Instructions

Proof points are specialized copy designed to encourage attendees to engage with your company. Think of proof points as cues to start a conversation with an attendee about their needs, challenges and perspectives. They are placed at eye-level to capture attention and support the dialogue with the demonstrator.

Please consider the following when writing proof points:

- Proof points are most effective when they are focused on the attendee's needs. They should be customer-focused, conversational, and should make people want to come into your booth. They should clearly state the benefits to the attendee of the product/solution/offering at the pedestal.
- Proof points should be written in sentence capitalization format; title caps or ALL CAPS format is not acceptable. Use an ampersand (“&”) instead of “and.”
- With an ultimate goal of provocation, the proof point should continue to tell the story and be written in a conversational tone.
- Consider a “Did you know?” construct to pique curiosity and encourage attendees to engage with your company.
- Substituting a URL for a benefit statement is not recommended.

IBM reserves the right to adjust or change your content to ensure it adheres to IBM guidelines. Once your content has been reviewed and you have provided approval, all subsequent changes are subject to rework charges.
